PA NEW OBSERVES

Slippery rocks' misfortune in losing one of her college buildings recently is regretted by everybody, but as the old saying goes, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and that proves to be true in this case.

Already several New Castle mechanics have been employed in reconstruction work, particularly in the erection of a temporary dining hall. Others will no doubt get work when the new buildings are started.

The hills and valleys of Lawrence county are beginning to lose their charm, as the beautiful foliage which adorned the trees is slowly dropping to sleep on the soft earth. Heavy rains, following recent frosts, has hastened the end of the season. There are still some trees, radiant in their crimson and gold, that seem to loath to lose their plumage, but it is only a question of a few more days until they must succumb to the inevitable law of nature.

While hunters here are thronging the county treasurer's office for licenses, farmers in at least six Pennsylvania counties are aroused over the threatened invasion of thousands of hunters during the special antlerless deer season. In some places the farmers are relying on "no trespass" signs, but it is claimed that in other places a system of patrols has also been instituted. The hunter will have to be pretty agile to dodge the farmer and get his deer.

Down in Beaver county they have politics reduced to a science. They take no chances. For instance in Franklin township a tax collector is to be elected this year. In order to cinch the job D. A. Stamm is running on the Republican ticket and his wife is running on the Democratic ticket. At any rate it's a new thought in politics and worth considering.

Pa. News notes that the red light on the east side of the traffic light at North and Jefferson streets has not been burning for several days.

During the past few days an unusually attractive bouquet of bitter sweet has adorned the lobby of The News. The bouquet was brought in by Mont Metzler.

Statistics for the same date a year ago follow:

Five Hundred Men Are Ordered Added To State Motor Patrol

(International News Service)
Eight killed each day!
2600 killed each year!
50,000 injured each year!

Appalled by these figures for Pennsylvania alone, Gov. George H. Earle today mobilized all the state's resources to stop the slaughter on Pennsylvania highways.

To Add 500 Men

He directed Commander Percy W. Foot to the state police to add 500 men to his force at once.

Already 250 more new state police automobiles, radio equipped, have been ordered. Another 100 will be ordered.

Traffic laws will be enforced to the limit, the governor indicated.

The governor made known his plans at a suddenly called press conference in Pittsburgh visibly agitated, he paced his hotel room back and forth as he spoke with newspapermen.

"Pennsylvania must take the lead to reduce this terrible slaughter," he declared.

Newly Crowned King Makes His First Speech To British Parliament

Has Invited King Carol For Visit, Will Try To Make Indian Trip

By CHARLES A. SMITH
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Under the eyes of their two young daughters, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth opened parliament today for the first time since their reign began.

In his "speech from the throne" written by his ministers and free from all sensations, the king touched briefly on the far eastern and Spanish wars and dealt lengthily with the tremendous program of forthcoming domestic legislation.

Invites King Carol

He also announced that he had invited King Carol of Rumania to visit him this spring and said he hoped to be able to visit India at some distant date.

Members of parliament accustomed to royal speeches from the throne after years of listening to them found little exciting material in the king's speech today, but for the two little princesses, one of whom is looking forward to the day

Hoover Will Not Be Candidate

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Apparent removal of former President Herbert Hoover from the list of possible contestants for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 was indicated today in a statement from Lawrence Richey, his secretary.

Said Richey:

"Mr. Hoover has said a dozen times that he would not be a candidate. A few weeks ago I gave out a statement from him in which he repeated that."

The Richey statement was of particular interest in view of the speech Hoover is scheduled to deliver at Boston tonight.

Parade Plans For South Side

General Chairman Druschel Says Arrangements For Mummer's Parade Complete

CELEBRATION ON THURSDAY NIGHT

South Side residents are all agog this week as the time nears for the annual South Side Halloween celebration, Thursday evening, October 28.

General Chairman William Druschel today stated that all major plans have been completed.

All that the Slabtowners ask for is a break from the weatherman. And, if the weather control man answers favorably, the citizenry is in for one of the biggest and most successful Halloween "yipp-ee" parties in years.

In the hands of President Harry Clark rest a couple of hundred dollars which will be awarded to the mummies. Instead of merchandise, the South Side merchants are dishing out "monia." There are plenty of cash awards. To top off the evening, the Slabtowners will award $10 to the best decorated float in the parade.

Moves At 8 P. M.
Promptly at 8 o'clock, the parade will move out of Pennsylvania

President Considers Business Situation

By GEORGE BURNO
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 26.—President Roosevelt today earnestly pursued his quest for a balanced budget and a reassured American business structure.

In the well-guarded seclusion of his family estate, the president was receiving William O. Douglas, new chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission; Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Maritime commission; and Roy W. Howard, the newspaper publisher.

Best information was that Mr. Roosevelt has adopted a "hands-off" policy so far as federal intervention in the turbulent stock market is concerned.

Discuss Business Situation

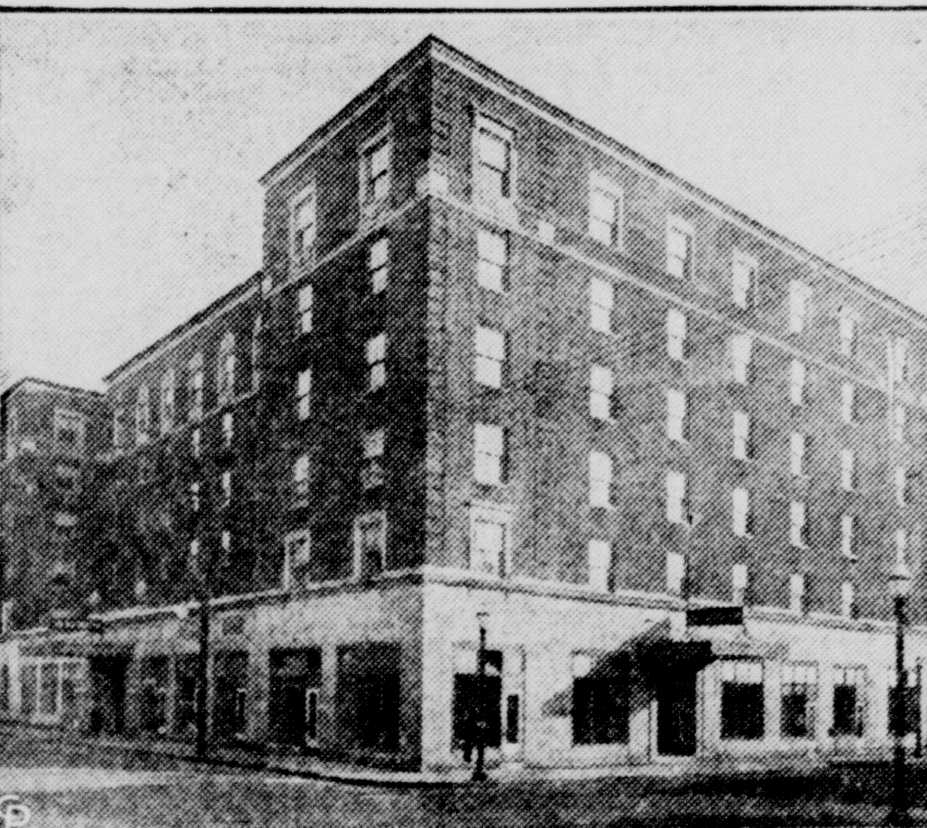

The presence of S.E.C. chairman Douglas, it was understood, did not denote any change in the 55 per cent margin requirement or other restriction that the government had in its power to impose.

Mr. Roosevelt is interested keenly nevertheless in recent developments in the financial and business world.

Monday, the executive spent an hour with four business leaders representing the business advisory council but they came away saying they merely had invited Mr. Roosevelt to dine with the council in December or January—without, however, getting any acceptance.

Joseph P. Kennedy's presence in Hyde Park was regarded as particularly significant. The president leans heavily on the financier for advice about developments in the stock market. Kennedy organized the securities and exchange commission during one of his earlier services with the New Deal.

The Castleton Hotel

Tenth Anniversary Is Being Observed By The Castleton

Big Hotel Formally Opened For Service Ten Years Ago Tonight

Many Notables Have Been Guests During Days Since Opening

Ten years ago tonight, October 26, 1927, there was a banquet in The Castleton hotel. As banquets go it was something more than an ordinary success. From a gastronomic standpoint it was all that it could be asked, from a social standpoint it was more than that for at the tables that night sat many persons of importance in New Castle. But these were secondary things, the banquet was an event for it marked the formal opening of the new community owned hotel in New Castle.

True there had been two meals served there previously. The contractors had been tendered a banquet earlier in the month, and a week or so before the opening, the late Percy L. Craig, then state superintendent of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School association tendered a luncheon to the leaders of the organization. Benches were used instead of chairs at that luncheon for the hotel furnishings had not yet been completed.

Its Formal Bow

The banquet of October 26 was the real debut of the hotel for it marked the turning over for public use of a hostelry that had long been

Former President Hoover Will Speak To Nation Tonight

Address To Be Made At Dinner Of Republican Club At Boston, Mass.

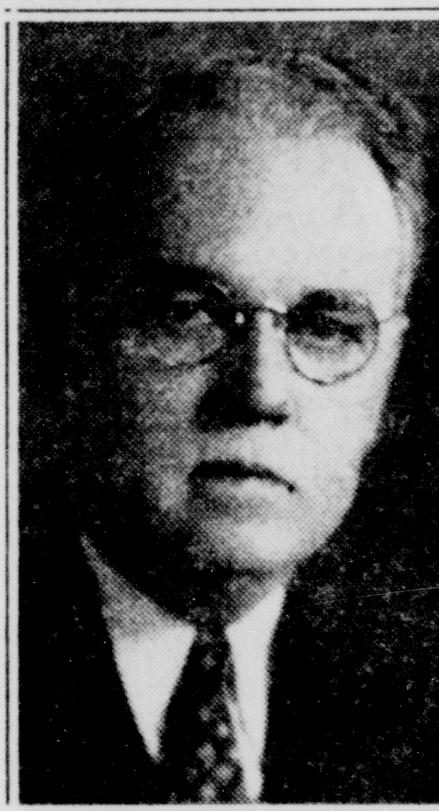

(International News Service)
BOSTON, Oct. 26.—One week to the day since former Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, delivered himself of a slashing attack on the national administration, former President Herbert Hoover tonight will analyze the issue facing the Republican party.

Like Landon, the former president's address will be a half hour in length and broadcast over a national hookup.

A group of notables including three former governors, Alvan T. Fuller, Frank G. Allen and Channing H. Cox, formed a welcoming delegation to greet the former president when he arrives here for his first visit since as president, he came to Boston in 1930.

Sounding board for tonight's address is the semi-annual dinner of the Republican club of Massachusetts. Mr. Hoover was to be the guest of Christian A. Herter, Republican "whip" of the state legislature. Declaring "complete harmony" exists in the G. O. P., Herter said no official conference of party leaders were planned in connection with Hoover's visit but that the former leader of the party would meet many of his old friends while here.

Japanese Make Important Gains Near Shanghai

Spectacular Series Of Victories All But Wreck Defenses Of Shanghai

HEAVY CARNAGE OCCURS IN BATTLE

Shanghai-Nanking Railway Is Cut In Latest Gain Made By Nipponese

(Copyright, 1937.)
SHANGHAI, Oct. 26.—In a spectacular series of victories, Nippon's forces all but wrecked China's defenses today, occupying Tachang and Miachang and cutting the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

Only a sudden Chinese counter-attack, waged against almost overwhelming odds, can now halt the Japanese war machine on the 25-mile Shanghai battle front, observers believe.

Claim Huge Losses

Indicating the carnage that preceded the latest stunning Chinese defeat, a Japanese spokesman claimed Chinese casualties up to a quarter of a million men.

Of this number, the spokesman said, 67,000 Chinese were left dead on the field of battle.

Japanese forces cut the vitally important Nanking railway at a point a little to the east of Nanking, a strategically situated terminal of the road.

As a result, the only completely free railroad now left to the Chinese is the Shanghai-Hangchow line.

With the Chinese position around Shanghai now dangerously imperiled by the Japanese advance, commanders of the invading forces anticipated a general Chinese withdrawal from the Kiangwan and

Male Descendant Of Hawaiian Kings Held For Murder

Accused Of Slaying His Beautiful Common Law Wife At Honolulu

(International News Service)
HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 26.—A formal charge of second degree murder was filed today against Prince David Kalakaua, 30, the last male descendant of Hawaiian kings, for the slaying of his beautiful common law wife, Arvelia Kinslea, 22.

Although plans had been made by the prince's mother, Princess David Abigail Kawanakoa, wealthy sugar cane plantation owner to post bail for the release of her son, the nobleman's attorney Frank Thompson, prominent Honolulu lawyer, indicated the prince's freedom would not be sought until later today.

Prosecutor John C. Kelley who filed the second degree murder charge against the prince, was framing a petition to forestall prolonged freedom of Kalakaua.

I am not a band musician though I like their music much, I never studied counterpoint or harmony or such. But if I played it seems to me what I would play would be no ride, I'd take the bass drum if I could or else I'd play the old bull fiddle. The piccolo is very nice but all it does is tweet, tweet, tweet, the saxophone is not so bad, if one can play it low and sweet. But if you like your music loud and brash and big, by all means play the old bull fiddle, there's the thing, the weather's sixty one today.

Broker Shot Seeking To Halt Bandit

Philadelphia Man Wounded

Bandit Is Captured On Philadelphia Street After Holdup Attempt

C. MORGAN KNIGHT BATTLES FOR LIFE

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—C. Morgan Knight, 28, socially prominent investment broker and amateur yachtsman, today was battling for his life against a bullet wound inflicted by a gunman.

Knight was shot through the stomach at close range when he attempted to halt the flight of a bandit who almost escaped with $1240 after a daring one-man holdup at the cashier's cage on the eighth floor of the midtown John Wanamaker's department store.

After escaping from the broker's grasp on the sixth floor, the bandit continued his flight to the street where he was cornered by patrolmen. The gunman identified himself as A. W. Gregg, of Milwaukee recently paroled from the penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., where he was serving a six year sentence for robbery.

Police believe Gregg may have been a member of the notorious Bird gang in Ohio, one of whose members, Charles Widmer, was captured here 10 days ago.

plague that took many lives each year, we'd spend millions to fight it. This is worse than a plague."

The governor asked newspapermen to broadcast his plea throughout Pennsylvania for the newspapers, radio stations and local officials in the smaller communities to cooperate with him.

Worried Over Conditions "I have been pretty worried since I became governor over our highway conditions," Governor Earle said. "We erected signs, big signs, at the 'point of contact' on the highways and they barely made a dent in the deaths and injuries."

Statistics show that more than half the accidents occur on straight roads and involve sober experienced drivers more than 25 years of age. A half of them involve pedestrians. Less accidents occur at night but the rate of fatality is higher.

"Nobody appreciates more than I do the tremendous boon the automobile industry has been to our country. But, this is too high a price to pay. I'm not willing to have it go on. I'm not willing to say it's a necessary evil."

The governor explained he was using his police powers to meet the situation. Pennsylvania now has, he said, about 600 highway patrolmen and 400 state police, recently merged into the Pennsylvania motor police.

High Power Cars

The new cars, he said, will be small, light and high-powered. Delivery may be delayed because of the current changeover in models.

"The sooner we get our police into these cars instead of motorcycles, which are only death traps, the better," the governor declared. "Motorcycles are not nearly as efficient as two men in a radio car."

"Of course, the ideal way would be to have federal legislation. But, since that is impossible, some state has to make a start. Pennsylvania must be first."

The increase in the state police forces will be about 50 per cent, the governor said. And this increase, he emphasized, should help cut down the crime bill. Recruiting will begin at once. The first rookies will be ready for duty in about three months and the others in about six months.

KING GEORGE OPENS PARLIAMENT SESSION

when she will be queen of England, it was a gala occasion.

Drive In State

The king and queen drove down Whitehall to the parliament buildings in state in the royal crystal coach. Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose preceded them along the processional route in a closed automobile.

It was the first time either of the little girls had witnessed the ceremony of opening a session of parliament, and both obviously were thrilled.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, suffering from a sharp attack of gout, was unable to be present. Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, deputized for him.

Help Restore Peace

In his speech the king said his ministers had followed continuance of the Spanish conflict "with growing concern to do everything in their power to assist restoration of peace to the Spanish people."

He expressed belief that "strict application of the international policy of non-intervention would materially contribute to this end."

Turning to the Sino-Japanese conflict, the king stated: "The position in the far east continues to engage the earnest attention of the government, who will persist in their policy of attempting in cooperation with other governments, members and non-members of the league of nations, to mitigate the suffering caused by the conflict and bring it to a conclusion."

Favorable Outlook

Outlining more than a score of bills for the legislature, the king mentioned unification of coal mining royalties, appointment of new judges to cope with the increased divorce cases, the new film quota act and said the work of expanding and equipping Britain's defense forces "is making rapid progress."

He rejoiced that the outlook for trade and industry in Britain remains favorable. The speech ended with the usual phrase:

"Almighty God the outcome of our deliberations will advance the happiness of my people and the peace of the world."

defendant strode to the stand with a firm step. He wore a blue suit with a white handkerchief peeping from a breast pocket. He was calm and nonchalant and talked in a firm, clear voice. He showed not the slightest sign of nervousness.

"What is your name?" asked Noonan.

"Laverne Moore," the witness replied.

"Your home?"

"Syracuse, N. Y."

"Where were you on the night of August 4, 1937?"

"Home in bed."

"I was home in bed that night, and until the morning of August 5. Noonan asked 'Monty' if he had been in a car with Roger Norton on the night of August 4, 1937, when the latter and three other bandits took part in the $700 'stick-up' of the roadhouse."

"I was not," said the witness.

"Were you in Kin Hana's place the night this crime was committed?"

"I was not," replied Montague.

Shortly before the defendant began his testimony, Noonan took the stand and read depositions from Californians attesting to Montague's good character in the past six or seven years.

Bing Crosby's deposition was read. So were affidavits from Mark Kelly, Los Angeles sports writer; Richard Arlen, the movie actor; Guy Kibbee, Oliver Hardy, Trem Carr, motion picture director; Douglas McKinnon, assistant motion picture producer; the Rev. Victor J. Follen, Catholic priest and others.

They all stated that Montague's reputation for peacefulness and quiet, and for honesty and truthfulness, was good. They used varying terms such as "good," "very good" and "above reproach."

CHINESE JAPS FIGHT TO DEATH

manders ordered them to fight unto death.

The battle of Shanghai attained proportions comparable to the heaviest engagements of the great war between Japanese troops, animated by an imperial edict that they must win a victory before the Brussels nine-power conference, captured the village of Tachang.

Their object was to tear away from the international settlement Chinese troops who had been ordered by Chiang Kai-Shek to die at their posts if need be but never retreat.

The Japanese backed their 100 bombing planes with 40 16-inch howitzers and had enormous material advantage. Both sides fought with desperation and made German and other foreign military observers doubt whether any European troops could endure such ferocity.

The Japanese claim of 70,000 Chinese dead and a quarter million casualties in the Shanghai area during the last two months may be exaggerated, but not much. In the opinion of neutral experts, the Japanese themselves must have lost 20,000.

QUEEN ESTHER PARTY HELD AT THIRD U. P.

The Third U. P. church assembly rooms, were transformed into a scene of witchcraft Monday evening, with huge corn stalks, lighted pumpkin faces, and black cats, with autumn leaves scattered about, the entire setting being more haunting with dim lighting effects, and bikey eyed ghosts. The occasion, was the annual Halloween party of the Queen Esther class members, which proved a riotous success, all guests appearing in costume. Husbands and escorts were special guests.

Uncanny creatures of all descriptions moved slowly about in silence, until every one had arrived, when the grand march was called. Sixty or more in the line-up. In selecting those with the most original and clever costumes, Mrs. William Mooney as "Topsy" was the first prize winner, and Mrs. John Ellis carried off the second award as "A bum on the highway." Contests ensued.

Bill Mooney and Arthur McNickel being prize winners.

With masks removed, the circus "side show" arranged especially for the occasion, caused a riot of mirth and laughter, with Cecil Potter and Bill McBride, running in competition as the "barkers". Both were decked out in true "sport" style, checked vests, tall silks hats, and giant black cigars. The show goes on—the fattest man was portrayed by Harold Walton while the fattest woman was Mrs. Cecil Potter. The "simsy twins" was none other than David Jones and Jack Kenahan, and climaxing this part of the program, Bernard Hook and William Mooney as "giant children" in their "little" boy Sunday suits, fairly rocked assemblage off their feet.

Morris Houk performed the knife swallowing feat, while "the last of the red skins" was portrayed by Mrs. Harold Walton. No side show is complete without a "bearded lady" and these honors went to Mrs. Otis Bransome.

Having made the rounds, the men present were invited to take front row seats to see the "American beauty" on the main stage, which resulted in much disappointment, when the curtains were pulled, showing a rose—in a large bowl of water.

Lunch followed, the banquet tables being cleverly decorated in Halloween suggestions. Favors marked each place.

Committees in charge, composed of the following: decorating—Mrs. Fred Thompson, Mrs. Bernard Hook, Mrs. John Ellis and Mrs. Gurth Rapson; program—Mrs. Harold Walton, Mrs. Cecil Potter and Mrs. Otis Bransome; social—Mrs. David Jones, Mrs. William McBride, Mrs. Wilbur McKibben, Mrs. Joe Must, Mrs. William McGuire and Mrs. Edward McLymonds.

MR. ROPER DISAGREES

THERE seems to be some discord in President Roosevelt's cabinet on what would constitute the proper farm program. While Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is seeking an extra session of congress to pass his income parity program, after admitting the defeat of price parity, Secretary of Commerce Roper, in an address before several thousand farmers in his native Carolina, urged a substitute for farm benefits and said there was danger "in carrying the subsidy policy too far."

Roper is quoted as declaring that "superimposed controls, except under emergency conditions, have a tendency to thwart the principles of democracy through a form of regimentation that we rightfully condemn in other forms of government."

Here is something which comes close to an admission that we have been practicing something in agriculture, which smacks somewhat of autocratic control of industry in other countries. It is notable, too, of course, that efforts continue to be made in congress to extend regimentation to other forms of industry. Other pertinent paragraphs from Secretary Roper's address are:

"Crop control and subsidy should eventually yield to a system under which the problem of fair return is solved by the free operation of efficient production and distribution."

"It is not entirely a matter of governmental policy. It is also a matter of intelligent initiative by the farmers in making wise use of the land and better safeguarding against land deterioration and erosion."

"Under pressure of maladjustment caused by conditions over which the farmer has no control, benefit payments are necessary to safeguard the economic well being of agriculture and of the nation as a whole."

"However, the program for the future must recognize that it is not special favor that the farmer wants but equality with those in other economic units; not subsidy, but economic justice."

"In recognition of the danger of a system of permanent subsidy through the strain imposed on the federal financial structure and the effect of artificially supported prices on foreign markets, the alternative plan must look to a reduction of tariff barriers and to a more scientific determination of the needs of both the domestic and foreign markets."

Mr. Roper expressed the sound opinion that better quality and more quantity per acre of diversified crops would tend to prevent price destroying surpluses and return better profits; that the farmer needs to use less land for big crops and more good land for diversified crops.

There is of course a great deal of sound sense in what Mr. Roper had to say. Many who voted for the farm program in the first place did so under the impression that it was an emergency measure. They believe its continuance will financially cripple the entire nation. They feel, too, that the laws of supply and demand should be taken into consideration and that much should be left to the good judgment of the farmer, who must of course rely on the Department of Agriculture for statistical information and sound advice on world conditions of agriculture.

Mr. Roper takes the traditional southern view on tariffs. It is true that our government should in every way encourage the export of our farm commodities. But there is now little tariff on non-competitive products coming from abroad. If we lower our tariffs to increase the inflow of competitive products the farmer runs the danger of losing a much more valuable home market in his quest for a foreign market. This must always be taken into consideration. But much can be done in the way of increasing our use of non-competitive foreign products in the interest of increased farm exportation.

WE MUST STAY OUT

Despite the fact that the great majority of the American people are in sympathy with China and feel moral resentment against Japan in its present invasion of the Celestial Empire, it remains true that the average man in the United States is just as much opposed to our active intervention in foreign affairs now as he has been at any time during the past decade.

The great World War taught us a real lesson about interfering with the affairs of other countries. We were propagandized into believing that in 1917 we had become engaged in a war to end all wars, and that we were fighting to make the world safe for democracy. We awoke to the sad realization that after the Treaty of Versailles had been concluded, war seemed more likely than before, and that armaments were steadily becoming greater than prior to the World War. We saw democracy give way to new forms of autocracy and involved ourselves in the greatest of modern world depressions, as a direct outcome of the great conflict.

For that reason, while the people undoubtedly sympathize with China in her present hour of trouble, they have no desire to adopt any program of economic sanctions that will result in another depression or send American boys across the Pacific to take part in defending cities, the names of which they cannot even pronounce, and with whose people they have little in common.

Nature is kind; and when she gives a man little sense, she usually evens matters by giving him a fine opinion of himself.

Conclusive evidence of recovery seems to be at hand. A delighted citizen reports having found a half-dollar in last year's overcoat.

The Japanese are resenting an increase in the price of public bathing. Just wait until they get the bill for public fighting in China.

Lack of manners is the chief cause of traffic accidents in the opinion of one expert. Every state, it appears, should have an Emily Post.

If you tend a machine for seven hours, you are a worker; if you doctor the sick for seventeen hours, you are "living on the labor of others."

According to a Cambridge professor, the thinking of men and fish is much alike. This applies principally to the men who disagree with us.

PLEADS FOR SERENITY

FROM an eastern city, Mrs. Harriet D'Allessandre writes: "Your article, 'Go Back to School' is fine. I often wish there were more such sympathetic approaches directly to our young people. There was one part of your advice that struck an old vagrant thought of mine—concerning Abe Lincoln's education. You asked what he might have done with our free-book opportunities. Well, you know, I doubt whether he, the real Lincoln, would ever have been heard of had he, early in life, been swamped in the mass of accumulative knowledge that exists in such stupendous free outlets that we know today. I sense this remark as near blasphemy from one who herself has profited so widely from knowledge gleaned from public libraries. But I sometimes wonder whether I could have recovered from the bewildering mass of such overflowing sources would have had on my knowledge-hunger when a child, to reap its potential benefits. Surely in mental culture, too, do we need to simplify our NEEDS, let alone our WANTS. As a further thought on the reason for Lincoln's greatness (apart from the few books he digested), I place first his simple log-cabin background and the noble mother who made of it a real home, finding time to pass on to her off-spring her own love of the soil about its doorstep."

Earlier Letter

In an earlier letter she wrote: "I must especially commend the article of yours, in which you pleaded for 'serenity' in the classroom. You know I myself have long felt the need of just such an atmosphere in the schoolroom. . . . In my home I have learned the precious lesson of the value of serenity. Before I learned it my husband would become irritable and disagreeable for what seemed to me to be no reason whatsoever. It never dawned on me that I was more than half responsible for this continued irritation, which made him quite as unhappy and miserable as it made me. Would you believe it, Dr. Myers, that through my own change in the home atmosphere, unnecessary quarreling and friction of all kinds has almost entirely disappeared? . . ."

"I believe that most of our delinquencies in children can be traced to homes continually in conflict. Children in these homes seek release somewhere, somehow. . . . Truly I am with you in believing that serenity in the classroom is one of the most necessary achievements, if we are to attain any kind of balanced civilization. And I believe with you, that emotional and mental unbalance which threatens the very root of American civilization, begins in the home and is accentuated in the classrooms of our educational institutions. Dr. Myers, keep bringing that fact before your wide audiences."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

"ONLY"

There seems to be considerable confusion as to just how big the national debt is. One member of the appropriations committee puts it in the neighborhood of $40,000,000, while another member of the same committee places it between thirty-six and thirty-seven billions. Likewise, they disagree as to just how much money the last session of Congress authorized the government to spend. One concludes from his figures that it was in excess of $10,000,000,000, while the other estimates it was "only $9,000,000,000."

Granting that the discrepancy is mostly due to political heckling based on technicalities regarding misappropriations, the fact remains that even optimistic calculations leave a staggering total, a total far beyond present revenues. And, the most that optimists hope for in fiscal 1938 is a "layman balance"—that is, a balance except for the public debt retirement.

As the New York Times, a Democratic newspaper says: "This is not a reassuring calculation, even if it works out. For it means that expenditures are now at so high a level that even the boom years of a business cycle do not provide for the retirement of debt accumulated during the depression years. Under such a policy there is nothing to keep the debt from mounting endlessly."

A STORY

The bride-to-be was showing her friend a list of the guests to be invited to the wedding.

After her friend had read the names she looked puzzled.

"What's the matter?" asked the bride-to-be.

"Isn't this rather strange?" queried the friend. "You have only put down the names of married couples."

"Yes, that was Jack's idea. Don't you think it's rather clever?"

He says that if we invite only married people the presents will be all clear profit."

THE PROPOSING PARTY

Mrs. Brown: "When I was a girl we used to have proposing parties. I don't suppose you ever hear of such a thing now."

Miss Bright: "Why-er-yes. I had a proposing party call on me only last evening. How do you like my ring?"

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:06. Sun rises tomorrow 6:22.

We noticed a water plug knocked over on the Mercer street hill a few days ago. The water plug was evidently too near a car that was parked up there to keep from paying a nickel.

When you go through the country and see a nice big flock of nice turkeys what do you think. We do too!

As we understand it trucks have a right to load and unload without paying a parking meter. But that doesn't mean it can unload in the middle of the street when there is room along the curb. It also doesn't mean it can park on the wrong side of the street pointing in the wrong direction just so the driver can save a few steps. Trucks should not be allowed to unload in front of a store when there is room for it in the rear. Drivers of trucks have a lot to learn and lots of them should learn to drive a truck first. An ordinary car with a sign posted on it surely isn't a truck and parked for hours without paying the meter.

It takes more than 1,000 pounds of water to produce a pound of bread.

She was in a local telephone booth—also in distress. Wiping away the tears that threatened to ruin her complexion, she pulled down on the hook to attract the operator's attention.

"Hello," came the young woman's clear voice.

"H-ello," she sobbed. "I-I want my money back. Clarence would not speak to me."

It's got so you can't tell by a man's ideas whether he's a great man or a fool.

A second case of a citizen standing publicly on his head is reported in the Midwest. Evidently a counter move of some kind in a sit-down strike.

Dr. J. H. Mathews, of Wisconsin University, has announced a device for determining the make and model of a gun from the study of its bullet.

Why cheer a winner? He has merely defeated an inferior, and the loser could do that.

Perhaps it would be a good thing to let China give Japan a good lacing. The Japs have been hunting trouble.

The hostess who finds it difficult to entertain her guests might go into the next room and give them a chance to talk about her.

There are even people who have confidence in the chicken alkali king served in public eating places.

Bringing the nations closer together by aviation doesn't mean that they trust one another more.

"Does your neighbor return the tools he borrows?"

"He has to! I won't lend him the lawnmower in the spring until he brings back the snowshovel he borrowed in the winter."

It isn't often a hit and run driver gets very far after hitting a cow or a pig, especially a pig. It is said a pig is the most dangerous thing to hit with an automobile. It may be because the fat files.

LIFE LITTLE AGONIES

"Would you mind settling your bill now?" the waiter asked of a patron. "You see we are closing now, sir."

"But hang it all," replied the irate patron. "I haven't been served yet."

Well in that case, sir," warbled the waiter, "there will be only the cover charge."

If we sent out a motorcycle driver his first order would be to make as little noise as possible. We have known of motorcycles that lost business for their owners on account of the terrible and unnecessary racket they made.

SAVING FORMULA

Evidently Washington has been trying to find a "face-saving" formula for Japan. If the Brussels conference could provide a means whereby Japan would be credited by the world with having achieved her aim of "punishing" China, then it is believed Japan may halt conquering any more of China.

That is an optimistic view. Japan is controlled by militarists, who have no thought of giving up any land in China or of ceasing to penetrate as far as they can. Furthermore, if the militarists should stop now, and the cost of their venture become known to the Japanese people, the present regime probably would fall. There is, thus, little likelihood that Japan will accept a face-saving gesture. There is, in fact, no assurance at this writing that Japan even will attend the Brussels conference.

That will end any practical move

Reader Upholds President. Takes Only Course On Japan. Voice Of Protest Is Urged.

By LESLIE EICHEL, Central Press Columnist

A WOMAN very much interested in foreign affairs told us that she believes President Roosevelt is following the only course he can follow morally in regard to Japan.

"A nation which does not raise its voice when another nation is despoiled may itself be despoiled at some later date," she remarks. "A voice raised in protest DOES have effect. Perhaps no other action can be taken. But that alone challenges the aggressor. It may not stop him at the moment, but it does arouse public opinion all over the world."

"The United States may well realize that no conference with European nations can be thoroughly trusted. But if it enters without commitments and makes clear that it goes to the conference because it is horrified and not to play a game of political cards, then the united word of a conference also can have strong weight."

"There has to be such a thing as a court of public opinion to restrain aggressor nations. Public opinion elsewhere may reach and affect their own people. There can be no supine acquiescence to terrible wrongs in our desire to remain isolated. We ourselves then become a party to the wrongs."

"If, as the Roosevelt administration has pointed out, the Nine-Power conference will provide a neutral forum for Japan and China to discuss their problems, then, indeed, it may rank as an historical peace meeting."

"Millions of people wish there were a permanent court of peace somewhere in the world."

Urges Wearing Of Poppies On Armistice Day

President Of Perry S. Gaston Unit Asks That Memory Of Veterans Be Honored

AUXILIARY TO CONDUCT SALE

An appeal for the general wearing of the memorial poppy in remembrance of the World War dead, on Poppy Day, Saturday, November 6, and again on Armistice Day, was issued today by Mrs. Eleanor Wilkins, president of the Perry S. Gaston Post, Unit No. 343, of the American Legion.

She asks that every person in New Castle pay honor to the men of New Castle and of the nation at large, who gave their lives in defense of their country, by wearing a poppy on this occasion. Everyone can wear a poppy to show that he remembers and is grateful for the sacrifices made for America's security and democracy.

The poppy is the symbol of supreme sacrifice. It stands for the highest type of patriotism we can conceive. Mrs. Wilkins said. Wearing this little flower awakens in the heart a deeper conception of one's duties to his country, and gives one an inspiration to serve in peace with the same spirit of patriotic devotion which inspired those who died among the poppies of France.

Girls from the Senior high school, supervised by Mrs. Marjorie Rhodes, assistant principal, will distribute these memorial poppies on the streets here, all day Saturday, November 6, receiving in exchange, contributions for the Legion Auxiliary's welfare work among the disabled veterans and needy families of veterans.

The poppies to be sold have been made by disabled veterans in the government hospitals of the country, who receive a portion of the proceeds of the sale to maintain themselves.

Processing Taxes May Be Revived

Claim Major Farm Organizations Will Back Levying Proposals

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Major farm organizations will back proposals for the levying of up to $500,000,000 in processing taxes annually to finance the new farm program, it was indicated today.

Revival of the old AAA levies, perhaps in modified form, was planned in measures sponsored by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and farm organizations and leaders of the congressional farm bloc.

Violent opposition to the processing taxes, as taxes upon necessities of life, already is beginning to take shape and a bitter battle is expected.

Members of congress from New England textile centers and from big cities will take the lead in the fight to avoid a return to the AAA levies which provided national discussion.

MacNicholas Is Speaker Monday

Explains "Gra Y Club" Community Movement Now In Effect

In a comprehensive manner, Henry MacNicholas, of the Y. M. C. A., explained the "Gra Y club" community movement now in effect, to members of the New Castle Exchange club, Monday evening in the Elks club, North Mill street.

Mr. MacNicholas explained that "gra" means grade school boy, and Y indicates the Y. M. C. A., conducting the classes. The idea of the plan is to form a strong tie-up between the boys and an organization. Then, he went on to say how it could be done on a community wide basis.

The movement, briefly: Plan is to go into a neighborhood where a grade school is located and institute a boys' club which includes boys of that locality. The club then meets once a week at a home or school center and the following week at the Y. M. C. A., and also do handicraft work.

The plan also includes three federations, a younger boys' federation, an older boys' federation and an under-privileged boys' federation. Each federation has four clubs. Once a month, each federation meets as a group and enjoys lunch, an activity such as a basketball tourney, a swimming meet, a movie, etc. Each club is supervised by an adult, either a teacher or a person who has had experience. Boys eligible for the Gra Y clubs range in ages from 9 to 14.

After becoming too old for a Gra Y club, a boy is then eligible for Hi-Y club. Each boy has a monthly report card which is given to church, school, parents and club.

The Y. M. C. A. started this drive last year and, with the sponsorship of the New Castle Exchange club, expects to go into other districts in the city. The plan are: Rose Avenue Gra Y, Neshannock Town, Gra Y, Ben Franklin Gra Y, North Street Gra Y, Highland Gra Y, George Washington Gra Y, and Lincoln-Garfield Gra Y. After November 1, the Y plans going into at least six other districts to institute Gra Y clubs.

In 1936, about 300 boys were contacted. Before the year is over, approximately 600 boys are expected to be interviewed. Mr. MacNicholas stated. The speaker also asserted that there is room in every neighborhood for a club of this kind. This movement will aid in keeping boys out of streets after school hours.

The address was thoroughly enjoyed by the group. The Exchange club is in favor of the movement. The next meeting occurs Monday evening in the Elks club.

Missing Will Is Hunted In Grave

Exhume Body Of Late Mrs. Henrietta E. Garrett, Who Left $20,000,000

RELATIVES IN COURT TANGLE

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—Laid to rest seven years ago, the body of Mrs. Henrietta E. Garrett will be exhumed today in a search for the will of the woman who left a $20,000,000 estate, now claimed by 21,000 would-be heirs in every corner of the globe.

A tent erected around the Garrett family plot in Laurel Hill cemetery will shield the grave diggers from the eyes of the curious, while police will be on hand to drive away all but those authorized to be present by the court.

The disinterment was sanctioned by orphans' court on a petition filed by Mrs. Henrietta Garrett Ferguson of Haverford, namesake of Mrs. Garrett, widow of a millionaire Philadelphia snuff manufacturer.

Mrs. Ferguson maintains that Mrs. Garrett left a will and she believes it was hidden in the coffin by a servant, Carthage Churchville, now dead.

George Ross, one of the examiners in the Garrett estate litigation, will be in charge of the disinterment, while actual work will be supervised by W. W. Bringham, the undertaker who buried the elderly woman.

Boys Are Facing Stern Penalties

Many Complaints Made To Police About Boys' Depredations Here

City police received numerous complaints last night concerning the activities of boys. One complaint said that boys had stolen license plates from an automobile parked at Anderson and Huron avenues.

The complaints of disorder came from Clearview and East Long avenues; Logan and Moody avenues; Hillcrest avenue; Winslow avenue; Lathrop street and Grant and Sampson streets.

In Lathrop street, boys were alleged to have broken a number of milk bottles on the street which may have punctured auto tires. Street department employees were called to work to clean away the glass.

At Logan and Moody avenues boys were alleged to have broken a street light.

Heretofore boys have been lectured for offenses and in some cases forced to pay for damages committed. It is indicated that police authorities may use a sterner hand in dealing with those who commit damage now.

Hospitals Are On Approved List

Institutions Here Given Approval Of American College Of Surgeons

Following a survey of the entire American hospital field, the American College of Surgeons has just released its list of approved hospitals in the United States and Canada. On that list are the Jameson Memorial hospital and the New Castle hospital of New Castle as fully approved hospitals, and the Ellwood City hospital as a conditionally approved hospital.

In order to comply with the high standards required for approval by the American College of Surgeons a hospital must have a number of things. It must have a modern physical plant, a clear definition of organization, duties, responsibilities, and relations in the hospital's constitution, by-laws and regulations. It must have a carefully selected governing board with complete supervisory authority, a competent trained superintendent, an adequate and efficient personnel, an organized staff of ethical, competent physicians, adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities, regular group of conferences of the administrative staff and last a humanitarian spirit.

In all of these qualifications the Lawrence county hospitals come up to the requirements of the college. Other hospitals in this section of the state that have received approval are Providence hospital of Beaver Falls, Butler County Memorial, and Christian H. Buhl of Sharon.

Storm Clouds In Hard Coal Area

General Strike May Be Call In Anthracite Mines In Pennsylvania

COMPENSATION LAW BASIS OF DISPUTE

By FREDERICK N. POLANGIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Oct. 26.—Storm clouds gathered over Pennsylvania's beleaguered anthracite region today. Word was passed like lightning through the black, subterranean passageways where thousands of grimy men mine the world's anthracite that a general strike may be called because operators had refused to "swallow" a new workmen's compensation law.

As the new crisis approached, officials in Harrisburg and Washington hastened plans to end the troubles of the industry by placing it under the government's wing.

Chairman Martin F. Brennan of the tri-district board, United Mine Workers, answered a pronouncement of the Anthracite Institute that operators would not accept the compensation law by calling a "council of war" in Hazleton on November 15.

A group of leading operators refused to comply with the optional provisions of the new law, because, they said, the increased benefits allowed to disabled miners and their families would raise their compensation costs 300 per cent, which they termed prohibitive.

Secretary of Labor and Industry Ralph M. Bashore countered with a threat that his department would seek an amendment to make the compensation law compulsory at the coming special session of the legislature.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—The Republican executive committee met here today on the eve of the November 2 elections to weigh the demands that the state G. O. P. disown its former leadership, reorganize and support itself through popular subscription.

Also discussed today were five constitutional amendments appearing on the November 2 ballots.

Extensively the meeting was called by Chairman G. Edward Green to act on the Republican Crusaders' report which, introduced at the Altoona "reorganization" meeting last month, purported to show through a poll of 130,000 registered Republicans that sentiment favored a disassociation from state and national leaders and a possible junta with dissatisfied Democrats.

LIBRARY'S HOME SHOWS PROGRESS

Date For Opening Not To Be Known Until Work Progresses Further

While the renovation job moves steadily forward, no date can be established as yet for the completion of work at New Castle's imposing new Free Public Library at North and Mercer streets. The project has moved along notably but there still remains a good bit of work to be done.

It was said the building may not be ready for occupancy until some time after the first of the year. A crew of 28 workmen today pressed forward the job and it was indicated that operations will continue at the present rate during November and December.

The interior of the building, advanced to a state where visitors may well appreciate the magnificence of the city's future library home, has been altered considerably since the days when it served as the post office.

Rotarians Greet District Leader

Governor Robert Miller Honored On Monday; Challenge Sounded

District Governor, Robert Miller, of Titusville, leader of the Rotarians of District 33-B, was honor guest on Monday at the weekly luncheon meeting of the New Castle Rotary club.

Speaking before the club at the Castleton, Governor Miller, general secretary of the Titusville Y. M. C. A., challenged his fellow clubmen in a stirring address to "think more" of Rotary and of Rotary's aims and objects.

"Where there is a good, active, progressive and an alive Rotary club there is a progressive community," the district governor said. He called upon members to join in community movements such as the Community Chest.

The interesting noon-hour message also embraced many of the personal experiences which Mr. Miller enjoyed while abroad for last summer's convention of Rotary International at Nice, France.

President Walter W. Duff introduced Mr. Miller. Most of Sunday he had been in the city as Mr. Duff's guest and had visited local points of interest. Mr. Duff received his own board of directors in his East Leasure avenue home Sunday night and at that meeting the district head outlined his year's program.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Windsors' Visit Being Cheapened

Rumors Of Commercialism Take Away Glamor Of Coming Stay Here

MAY BECOME CITIZEN HERE

Central Press Washington Bureau 602 Times-Herald Bldg. By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The stay of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in the United States will be a perfect delirium of a visit, of course.

All the same, it unmistakably has been considerably cheapened in advance by persistent rumors of commercial motives connected with it. First, there was the story that the Windsors planned to become movie stars. Then followed the report that the duke was slated for a job as world film czar. The latest version, to the effect that his grace is booked as a super-salesman for Charles Bedaux's office equipment company really sounds rather convincing.

If it is nothing to David's discredit if he is starting out to work for a living. Still, it takes a bit of the romance out of the situation.

ICKES' ATTITUDE

Secretary of the Interior Ickes' attitude even adds a touch of the ridiculous to the whole thing.

On the supposition that the former king is coming here on an altruistic mission, to study housing and labor conditions generally, it was natural for him to ask of Secretary Ickes (through Mr. Bedaux) for some hints on these questions, with which Ickes is especially familiar.

But Ickes did not take the inquiry thus. His position is that, while undoubtedly it is his business to give all proper information to a foreign traveling man, it is not his duty to treat him otherwise than as an ordinary commercial traveler.

ICKES' WARNING

So he answered the ducal query by cable—collect.

He was polite about it. He said he would try to be helpful. But he warned the duke that his grace must shape his own itinerary and attend to his own publicity.

If it was not a subtle jab at his dukeship, what was it?

It certainly was a plain intimation that Ickes assesses visiting royalties in one official category and folk who are here purely on business in an altogether different one.

In short, royalty is entitled to a reasonable amount of eclat; not average foreigners.

Now, how is the duke, anyway, to be admitted to this country as a permanent resident, except under our quota law, for foreigners? It may be contended, by some technicality, that the duchess retains her American citizenship, but the duke assuredly is a foreigner.

He can come in as a tourist, under a permit, and stay for six months. He can get his permit extended and re-extended. But ultimately he must be deported as an alien, unless originally he was legally admitted, under the British quota.

It does not matter how royal he is. Foreigners who have slipped into the United States and have married American women and who have American children, nevertheless can be and have been deported.

He would be in fact, however, just like any other immigrant.

He'd have to wait until we had legal room for him.

And this qualification surely would be raised. If it is raised, it will be a plenty embarrassing.

I have no doubt that, should the Duke of Windsor chose to remain in the United States, as an American, some method would be found to permit him to do so under our quota regulations.

DOGS SOLD ON TRIAL VISITS

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK Oct. 26.—New York's scrappiest citizen is undoubtedly the recently ousted Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden. Ever since he came over from Ireland he has been strutting about with a chip on his shoulder and adding fireworks to the world of boxing.

A bantam with an always tightly clenched cigar, he puts everybody on the defense. I have known him casually for years, but when I met and pass the us—always rather expect him to bristle up and inquire: "Want to make something of it?"

He has been in a constant row with the Garden management and his contempt for the Boxing Commission, individually and collectively, will turn the air blue at any time. Sports writers like him, for he has been a peg upon which to hang many bright yarns.

Johnston, in leaving the Garden, will promote boxing on his own. His particular star is the nimble Bob Pastor. Nobody knows the fight game better and none has been more successful in picking the winner in big championship bouts the past ten years.

City slicker: Dwight Fiske is reputedly paid around $1,000 a week by a fashionable snack bar for singing—or rather talking—songs not far removed from ballads of the bordello. Glossily dinner jacketed, his audiences are chiefly of Cholly Knickerbocker's haute monde, who frequently, as sophisticated as they are and as Dorothy Parker conscious, giggle in a sort of off-key confusion at the double entendre. Fiske is the debonaire Gold Coast version of the telegenic, pasty-faced fellow with the drooping cigaret we used to see crouching over the piano in the shuttered house across the track giving "Room 202" the business!

Dog shop owners are ever pleased to permit responsible dog fanciers to take home any pet that strikes their fancy for a few days to see how it fits in the household routine. Almost invariably taking the dog home elicits the sale. Not many dog lovers can be around one 48 hours without becoming attached. I ran afoul of such an experience recently, hunting a companion for an old established dog and coming upon a handsome year-old Boston peppy, affectionate and perfectly streamlined. But due to his short nose, as often happens, his breathing was labored. Yet I decided to take him on trial a few days. But after 24 hours I returned him hastily, for he kept the household awake snoring. Another 24 hours and he would have had me, even though he out-wheezed a sick calf.

Now and then I go up to Harlem's Savoy ballroom with Henry Sell to watch the colored dancers essay the Lindy Hop, the Susie Q, the Shag and the more recent Big Apple. Around midnight the dancing takes on something of the barbaric frenzy of a deep jungle—providing an interesting study in atavism. Young bucks and girls weave swing, waltz and roll eyes much like the rituals of a tribal dance. And their endurance is astonishing. They will dance as long as the music plays without showing slightest fatigue. At the Savoy there is little drinking and few demure of the dance halls—most of the dancers are working girls getting exhilaration out of sheer joy in dancing.

I know no one in the Manhattan scene who picks more genuine enjoyment out of living than Col. Joseph Hartfield. A celebrated international lawyer and head of an important legal firm, he is a bachelor who knows everybody and is always present at ever important affair. A native of Henderson, Ky.—home of Audubon—Col. Hartfield is a teetotaler but one of the town's most distinguished gourmets and almost nightly in one of the high grade restaurants is a generous host. He is also a regular first nighter and patron of the big athletic events, and if memory serves dominated the football stadium to his alma mater, the University of Virginia. He is a frequent visitor to European capitals, where he is as well known as he is in New York. Another well-known New Yorker from Henderson, Ky., is the photographer, Ewing Galloway.

Memories: The biggest snowball bush in town . . . Major Scarberry's faded blue, short-caped overcoat with the thrilling bullet hole in the shoulder.

School Pupils Check Hazards

Army Recruited By Red Cross Starts Effort To Prevent Accidents

HOPE TO AVERT
MANY ACCIDENTS

In an effort to combat the sharp rise in the home and farm accident rate, the American Red Cross enters the third consecutive year of its effort to cut the death and injury toll which result from accidents in the home and in agricultural pursuits.

The school pupils of New Castle and Lawrence County are part of an army of 7,000,000 school children, mobilized by the Red Cross, to remove home and farm work hazards under the direction of their parents, Chairman Ralph F. Davis, of the Lawrence County Chapter stated today. This work is being supervised by Bernard Hook, chairman of the Chapter's First Aid activities.

In 1936, home and farm accident fatalities increased to 38,500, surpassing deaths from automobile accidents. Occupational fatalities in connection with farming soared to 4,500, an increase of 100 over the preceding year.

Pointing out that the Red Cross campaign meets a vital need, Mr. Hook states that according to National Safety Council statisticians, not only were 38,500 persons killed, but that 170,000 were permanently injured, and more than 5,000,000 received injuries of a lesser nature, this last figure representing more than half the injuries resulting from all types of accidents.

School children have been given Red Cross inspection forms and with the supervision of parents, will go through their homes from cellar to attic to check hazards. On the reverse side of the inspection forms, are listed farm work hazards, and school children residing in rural areas will inspect unsafe features of machinery, animals, home work equipment and other items which might cause accidents if not used with extreme care.

Teachers and principals are co-operating wholeheartedly, and home accident prevention is being made a classroom project, the Red Cross here finds.

Parents and householders are urged by Mr. Hook to oversee the safety efforts of the children who bring home the Red Cross inspection form.

AROUND CITY HALL

Exactly what the Municipal Equipment company will pay to the city of New Castle for installing parking meters here will be ascertained in the near future, it having been indicated by city fathers that a power vote with company officials is in the offing. During Monday's councilmanic session it was voted to accept $2 per meter as a partial cost of installation. The itemized cost showed the city spent $4.26 on each of 434 meters. Since that time four other meters were installed. The original contract called for the company to install the meters. However, the company got the city to do the work upon a promise to pay $2 for each meter. Since then it has been found the cost exceeds that figure, at least here. Councilman Rice said he had been informed by a company representative that the installation cost in some other cities was not more than $2. Data from other cities may be presented at the meeting proposed for the future.

There are three city dumps. One is in North Jefferson street, another in Taylor street and a third in Cascade street. At the latter dump auto bodies and other large pieces of rubbish may be dumped. There are attendants at each dump, according to city officials.

Tick-tock, Tick-tock! Ever been in a clock repair man's shop and heard the clocks ticking? Once you have visited the private office of the chief of police you will be reminded of such a shop. It is there that parking meters are tested and with half a dozen of the meters working one is reminded of a clock man's shop and of all sorts of clocks.

John Golis, cruiser operator, is working an 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. turn. It is his first turn on daylight since he joined the police force years ago. John is recognized as one of the best and fastest operators in the police bureau. He formerly was on a beat but is now a member of the cruiser car force.

Council Opens Bids For Coal

Council met in the city building Monday and opened bids for coal which will be used by the city during the coming year. The bids were taken subject to the provisions of the Guffey act. Council will go over the bids within a few days and possibly make an award within the near future.

Six companies presented bids. The bids ranged from $2.50 to $3.64 per ton for slack and $4.24 to $4.24 for coal, per ton.

FIRE LOSS NOW PLACED AT $390,000

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Oct. 26.—A $220,000 transfer from the state insurance fund to pay for construction of a temporary dining hall and kitchen at the Slippery Rock State Teachers college today held the approval of Gov. George H. Earle.

The money will be used to purchase necessary equipment and furnishings destroyed during a fire at that institution on October 16. The fire damage was estimated at $390,000.

The damaged building had been included in a general improvement project contemplated by the general state authority.

Secretary of property and supplies Arthur Colegrove will advertise for emergency bids to assure immediate construction, the governor said.

Have Comedy Parts In School Play

Misses Wilson And Hartland To Have Important Roles In Production

Two of the comedy parts in senior high school's first play of the season will be played by Sallie Wilson and Jeanne Hartland.

Sallie is the Swedish maid, Ingeborg, who pursues the butler of the household with the same determination and ultimate success that are displayed by a Northwest "mountie". Ingeborg's creator for the school play is one of the outstanding members of the January group of seniors, who has been on the cabinet of the Girl Reserves for two years. She is a member of the art staff for the annual, and strives for marksmanship in the Girls Rifle club. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Wilson of Young Street.

Jeanne Hartland is "Blanche" O'Donovan, one of the tenement children who have tried to make life miserable for invalid granddaughter of a wealthy couple who have never acknowledged the child's existence. It is in the tenement among all its squalor and poverty that grandparents and grandchildren make one another's acquaintance.

If there is any activity in which Jeanne could participate in which she did not enroll it is because she did not know about it. Some of her numerous responsibilities were thrust upon her by election, some represent voluntary school service and some represent the purely social proclivities of a born "jiner". Vice-president of her class in '35, student representative and member of the student council that same year, member of the Leaders' Squad for the physical education department ever since she came to high school, participant in the football drill in '35 and again in '37, Girl Reserves' cabinet during this current year, a class basketball coach at the present time, of the library squad in '35 and '36, and member of the French club, Rooters club, Leaders club and of the Girl Reserves and of her class basketball team in '35, '36, '37. This active and popular young woman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Hartland of East Hazel street.

Makes Complaint About Parking

J. P. P. Kennelly appeared before council at their meeting in the city building Monday and complained of automobiles being parked on the west side of Norris Way between East Washington street and Sycamore Way.

He advocated that some arrests be made which was approved of by Councilman James L. Fink. Mayor Charles E. McGrath said he would investigate to ascertain if Norris Way is ordained and intimidated that he may ask council to pass an ordinance prohibiting parking in that block.

Smith's Cleaners and Dyers, always abreast of the latest developments in the Dry Cleaning world, announce the installation of new Form-Fit Hollywood Blocking Units. These units are especially designed for all types of knitted wear such as boucle and hand-knitted garments; also for lace and net dresses. The Hollywood blocking method is the same used by the manufacturers in the making of knitted garments of all kinds. It is entirely different from the present method applied. Knitted garments are first cleaned and retensioned, then placed on the Form-Fit Hollywood blocking unit, where they are reshaped and resized, which enables us to make knitted garments to your individual measurements.

The Hollywood blocking equipment is the last word for knitted garments. When your garments become soft and baggy, send them to Smith's, where the Hollywood Form-Fit blocking unit will renew and restore the natural color as well as the original shape and style.

Spur Chest Army As Report Nears

Teams Eye Thursday Noon, When Solicitors Will Hear Week's Tally

Thursday noon, not too far off, is anxiously awaited by New Castle's hard-working Community Chest workers.

That day they expect to give a handsome boost to the $47,480.22 reported subscribed to the 1937-38 fund when they last reported on Friday of last week. That day they hope—and sincerely hope—they can near the total of $70,000 called out when they rally at the First Christian church to give another accounting. It happens that $70,000 is their goal.

New Castle's annual chest campaign, with nine participating agencies this year, opened Monday, October 18. It has been locally directed from the start and the expense of its conduct has been smaller than in past years.

Community Chest headquarters, 37 North Mercer street, where many citizens have walked in and voluntarily pledged this year, is keeping busy and out in the field most of the workers were following up their cards.

Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson is this year's general chairman. Bernard N. Harlow, New Castle Motor club secretary, is its director.

needed in New Castle. Congressman Henry W. Temple was the speaker of the evening at that banquet. Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid of the American Hotels company was another speaker. Senator George T. Weingartner, the president of the hotel company, was the toastmaster and gathered about the tables were important guests not alone from New Castle but from half a dozen surrounding cities.

The keynote of the banquet that night was "service." The hotel was built to render service to the traveling public and to the city of New Castle, the speakers said and now ten years after, it can be said that that promise has been kept every year, with each year seeing an advancement in the service of the hotel.

The need for a hotel in New Castle had been one of growing proportions for many years. In 1925 a group of forward looking business men got together and decided that something should be done about the matter and the Hockenberry system of Harrisburg was asked to come to New Castle and put on a campaign for half a million dollars for a new hotel. On February 3, 1926 the campaign formally opened in the old Masonic building on North street. On the closing day of the campaign the teams reported $541,000, more than had been asked for and the hotel was assured. A plot of land at the corner of North Mercer and Falls street was purchased and the H. J. Conrath company of Erie given the contract of erecting the building. The land cost $102,500, the building cost $525,000, and the furnishings and equipment brought the grand total to approximately $750,000. John L. Slack was the first manager and served four years. He was succeeded for a few months by Frank J. Toole and on June 1, 1932 Thomas M. Boyle was named manager and is the present manager of the Castleton.

Has It Served?

Has the hotel served its purpose? The answer is yes, and in a very definite way. The Castleton has been a community center for the ten years of its life. Through its facilities travelers have found a haven of rest for the night, local organizations find it a central spot to meet, citizens find it an ideal place for dinners, and from coast to coast The Castleton hotel of New Castle is known as a modern, well kept, efficiently manned hotel. Situated almost in the center of the motor route from New York to Chicago it has become the ideal breaking point for that trip and nightly one sees cars of a dozen states around the Castleton, mute evidence of the popularity of the place.

The hotel has 160 rooms and the average occupancy for the ten years is 46 per cent, and this figure is a ten year average including the years of the worst part of the depression. Thus far this year the occupancy has been nearly 57 per cent. In those ten years the hotel has had 283,000 guests which means that as many people have stopped there as are found in Lawrence, Mercer and Butler counties.

A Lot Of Meals

In that time there have been 1,250,000 meals served which would account for a lot of bread and potatoes. The purchases of foodstuffs and materials in ten years have amounted to $1,250,000 and over half a million dollars in wages have been paid to the 85 employees who operate the hotel. Everything it is possible to buy in New Castle is bought here.

Many Notables Guests

Through the hotel have passed men and women of high and low degree. Among the guests have been numbered men of high estate in the governmental, artistic, scientific and social world. Who are some of them?

Among men of political and governmental significance are the following. Governors John S. Fisher, Gifford Pinchot, George H. Earle of Pennsylvania, United States Senators George Wharton Pepper, William S. Vare, David A. Reed, James J. Davis, Joseph P. Guffey, all of Pennsylvania, Senator Simon D. Pess of Ohio, Senator H. J. Allen of Kansas, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, Philip H. High Commissioner Paul McNutt, Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, the Republican nominee for president in 1936, Congressman Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, Secretaries of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Richard J. Beamish and David Lawrence, Lieutenant Governor Edmund S. Shannon, Arthur James (now a Superior Court judge), Thomas Kennedy.

From the state supreme court there has been Justices Linn, Barnes, Von Moschizker, Kephart, Stern, and several others, and many of the Superior Court judges.

All the national commanders of the American Legion since 1927 have been guests there. McNutt, Belgrano, Johnson, Colmery, and the others.

Dolly Gann was a guest at one time. Amelia Earhart Putnam and her husband were guests there several times. Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Paul Siple and a number of the crew that made the trip to Little America. Clyde Pangborn is another famous flyer who has stopped there. Among the movie stars have been Buddy Rogers, Jackie Coogan, Lila Lee, and it has always been a moot question whether or not Mae West stopped incognito one night. Among headline figures in sport were Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees and his bride who were on the Notre Dame football team.

Sigmund Spaeth the "tune detector" was a guest, so was Dorothy Parker the humorist, Henry L. Mencken was a guest at the time of the Landon party and along with Mencken the cream of the American newspaper world. Joseph Grundy was a guest so was Joseph P. Both well known industrialists. Others were Benjamin Fairless, president of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation and I. Lamont Hughes, president of the Carnegie Steel company.

Foreign Guests

Through the hotel registry have gone names of guests from Japan, Holland, Great Britain, Russia, Scotland, France, Germany and a lot of other countries.

Through the ten years the hotel has stood as a symbol of service. Many hotels of a similar type, community owned, have long since gone through the bankruptcy court and had a readjustment of the financial structure. The Castleton has paid its way and never once has it defaulted on payment of taxes or interest on bonds.

Founded as a community project The Castleton has more than lived up to the expectations of it. By now it is known throughout the country as a good place to stop and men and women who are on the road have learned that in New Castle there is a hotel which caters to their comfort with infinite care and efficiency.

Back of any successful venture there must be a man or group of men, convinced of the worthwhileness of their venture, and willing to sacrifice time and energy towards making that venture go.

So it is back of the Castleton hotel. The success of its ten-year existence which is being observed today is due in a large part to the men who have served on the board of directors and today most of the original board is still serving.

Back in 1926 when the hotel corporation was formed, the stockholders selected ten New Castle men whose business ability was unquestioned and who believed in their city and in the hotel project. The ten men organized the first board of directors and this was composed of the following: President, George T. Weingartner; vice president, O. P. Brown; secretary, P. J. Flaherty; treasurer, Howard B. Richards. Other directors were Fred L. Renz, Robert C. Love, James K. Love, T. F. Morehead, A. C. Hoyt and P. L. Craig. The two outside directors were Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid and Captain S. N. Bobo, both representing the American Hotels corporation of which chain the Castleton was then a member. For a number of years it has been operating on its own as a community hotel.

When the hotel withdrew from the American chain, Gen. Kincaid and Captain Bobo left the board of directors. Of the ten New Castle men only two of the group are not presently serving. P. L. Craig died some years after the hotel opened, and Howard B. Richards was transferred to Birmingham, Ala., by his company.

Replacing the four men the following New Castle business men were placed on the board: M. J. Donnelly, Thomas H. Hartman, David S. Pyle and Charles H. Johnson. Today T. F. Morehead is the president of the hotel. Mr. Brown is still vice president and to the duties of secretary Mr. Flaherty has added those of the treasurer.

Chapel areas tonight, ending the weeks in which they have pulverized the areas to desolate wastes. The Chinese, it was believed, may attempt to form a new battle line along the northern bank of Soochow Creek, part of which separates Chapel from the international settlement.

The Japanese entered Tachang, six miles north of Shanghai, in a night blow struck as one hundred Nipponese war planes rained death from the skies and a desperate combat raged in the streets.

The slashing Japanese victory was conceded by a Chinese military spokesman, who admitted Tachang had been occupied.

The Japanese coup, accomplished after a mass bombing maneuver by the 100 planes and suicidal hand-to-hand fighting in Tachang itself, left the Chinese military position around Shanghai dangerously precarious unless the city's defenders can organize an immediate and telling counter-attack.

Reduced To Ruins

Tachang, before it was captured, was reduced to nothing more than ruins by Japanese guns and bombs. Large Chinese reinforcements were rushed into the wreckage, but in hours of bitter fighting proved unavailing.

Other heavy Chinese troop reinforcement, sent into nearby Kwang-fu, indicated a major counter-movement may be in preparation.

The Chinese Japan's seizure of Tachang about mid-afternoon. All day long the opposing troops had been locked in a fierce struggle with Japan's determination to gain the upper hand spurred by the approach of the nine-power conference in Brussels.

Japanese authorities jubilantly claimed a smashing series of victories along the entire front north of Shanghai.

Their troops, they asserted, captured Maohang, three miles northeast of Tachang, and a Nipponese advance guard had progressed to a point one mile northeast of Nanhai-Nanking railway.

The Chinese spokesman, as in the case of Tachang, admitted the loss of Maohang.

He admitted that unless Chinese troops were able to check the Japanese advance they would be compelled to withdraw from Kwang-fu and might also be forced to evacuate Chapel if their counter-attack is not successful.

It was indicated the Chinese high command would throw every resource at its command into the field to break the Japanese campaign.

Shoe Industry Makes Charges

Protests Reciprocal Trade Treaty Proposed With Czechoslovakia

AMERICAN WORKERS LOSE EMPLOYMENT

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Charges of "ruthless international piracy" in the manufacture and world-wide distribution of shoes manufactured by cheap labor, were directed today against Bata, Czechoslovakian shoe monopolist, as the American shoe industry continued a barrage of criticism against the state department's proposed reciprocal trade treaty with Czechoslovakia.

Opposition to the trade pact was headed by Jay Otis Ball, representing the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers association, and Charles F. Johnson, Jr., of the Endicott-Johnson corporation of Binghamton, N. Y., largest manufacturer of shoes in the United States.

Ball charged the Czechoslovakian firm with "ruthless piracy in usurping the American and world markets and in copying American shoe designs."

U. S. Workers Lose

He declared that because of the inroads of Bata, American workers have lost $44,000,000 and 89,000,000 hours of work during the last twelve years.

The Czech manufacturer, who controls the shoe monopoly of Czechoslovakia, according to Ball, has invaded not only the American market, but the world market to an extent that American shoe exports have dwindled to virtually nothing.

Using American machinery and methods of mass production, together with cheap labor, Ball asserted that Bata has been flooding the American market with one type of low-priced women's shoes which he can deliver to the American retailer with all transportation charges and duties paid for $1.17 a pair. Due to material and labor costs in this country, this same shoe cannot be delivered at the factory door for less than $1.30 per pair.

Administration Policies Fail

Recently, Ball said, one American shoe manufacturer lost a $35,000 order to Bata through a large mail order house. This order alone, he said, would have been sufficient to keep the workers in that factory at work on American wage standards for two years.

In attacking the proposed treaty, Johnson pointed to the administration's higher wage and shorter working hour week policy as a reason why American production costs have risen.

"The present administration has been consistently urging higher wages and shorter working hours," Johnson said. "Naturally, this necessitates higher cost of production."

"Endicott-Johnson workers organization has led the way in going along with the administration but it is hard for us to understand how this same administration can be consistent if they make it harder all the time to meet unfair competition from abroad."

PROGRAM FOR LABOR PEACE IS SUBMITTED

lie utilities, service, basic fabrication and other mass production industries as a basic policy.

2. Creation within the federation of a completely autonomous C.I.O. department whose affiliates shall include all national, international, and local industrial unions now affiliated with the C.I.O.

3. Convocation of a joint federation-C.I.O. convention to be attended by all national, international and local affiliates of both, for approval of the foregoing points and to guarantee fulfillment of the program.

Demands Surprise

While some such demands were not expected, their sweeping character and their introduction this early in the negotiations provoked surprise.

If accepted by the federation, the plan in effect would assure C.I.O. numerical superiority and probable domination over the parent body making Lewis its actual if not titular head.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Labor's peace conference recessed at 11:36 a. m. today an hour after the committee for Industrial Organization had submitted its three-point peace proposal. American Federation of Labor delegates agreed to meet the C.I.O. at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

State To Prevent New "Ghost" Town

Pumps Economic Life Into Community Near Houtzdale In Eastern Part Of State

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Oct. 26.—The Earle administration today pumped economic life into what threatened to become a "ghost" town.

Senator Edward J. Thompson (D), Centre, disclosed today that he had been assured the necessary $5,000 to drain the Brookwood shaft of the Madeira Hill Coal company near Houtzdale, which closed September 1 when the company went bankrupt. The $5,000 is to come from state relief funds, he said.

With the community of 2,000 depending upon the operation of the soft coal shaft, which employed 525 miners, Thompson said negotiations were rushed to resume operations rather than have the mine junked. Junk dealers had bought equipment for $55,000, Thompson said, but have agreed to sell it back.

Thomas disclosed that William Hollenback, operator of the Burd Coal company, Philadelphia, has agreed to operate the mine, as Houtzdale citizens raised funds to help the cause.

"Four hundred persons went on relief when the shaft closed and, Thompson said, not only will the community be saved from becoming a blighted area, but the state will save thousands of dollars in relief funds as the mine resumes operations.

SECOND TERMS

In the selection of officers whose duties are wholly ministerial, there is a sound reason for returning the officer for a second term. Ordinary judgment dictates such a course for constant change is no more efficient in public business than in private.

Lawrence County has always believed in the second term for a Register and Recorder, along with other offices. It has believed it in the selection of a coroner, for example, and apparently my opponent is of the same opinion as he is now in the middle of his second term as coroner.

I have invited the most thorough investigation of my record as Register and Recorder. In the nearly four years I have served the work has been done efficiently and this statement is made without fear of contradiction.

If you believe that experience makes for efficiency, I ask your vote on November 2.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Novel Contest On Program In Ward On Friday

Select Another Miss Seventh
Ward—Award Given For Identity Friday

A feature of the Halloween celebration scheduled for Friday evening in the Seventh Ward, and one from which a lot of fun will be derived will be the selection of the two Miss Seventh Wards and two Mr. Seventh Wards.

In Monday's edition of The News one description of Miss Seventh Ward was given, another will be given in this article. On Wednesday descriptions of the Mr. Seventh Wards will be given.

On the night of the celebration these four persons who have been chosen to carry the name of the ward, will also carry a sum of money to be used as an award for the first person who identifies them.

Secure the descriptions from The News and try and see who you think they will fit. On Friday evening look up the person whom you think is Miss and Mr. Seventh Ward and say, "You are Miss (or Mr.) Seventh Ward." If you are the first person to approach these persons, they will hand over the cash to you.

All of the persons chosen for this position at the celebration are prominent citizens of the ward. Following is a description of the second Miss Seventh Ward.

She is five foot two inches in height, and tips the scales at 117 pounds. She has brown eyes, and dark hair. Was born in Mahoningtown and is a high school graduate. She works some and is unmarried. Miss Seventh Ward also has a pleasing personality and an excellent character. Another important item of description, this young lady also wears a 5-AA shoe.

Mahoning Team To Play Friday At Franklin

Big Game Of Season For Two Junior High Teams Is Scheduled Friday

Friday afternoon of this week Mahoning Junior high school football team will go to Ben Franklin for a game with that school. This game is the high spot on both of these teams' schedule, and old time rivalry will be renewed in this battle for victory.

The Mahoning team will be led by Coach Austin Cowmeadow and Assistant Blackie Adamo. According to these instructors their team has been undergoing rigid practice periods in order to be prepared for the oncoming fray Friday afternoon.

LOCAL PEOPLE AT WEDDING SATURDAY

Many residents of the Seventh Ward motored to Coropolis on Saturday to attend the wedding of two former residents, Arnold DeThomas and Florence Ross.

Immediately following the wedding the couple departed on a wedding trip. Upon the completion of the trip they will be at home to friends in Coropolis.

LOYAL WORKERS
Loyal Workers class of the Madison avenue Christian church will hold a regular meeting on Friday evening in the home of Mrs. C. H. Clark, Mount Jackson road.

Mustangs Defeat Mount Jackson

P. & O. Field Cedar Street Was Scene Of Fast Battle Between Grid Teams

Mustangs defeated Mount Jackson 18-6 at the P. & O. field Sunday afternoon. Wilks scored the first Mustang touchdown in the first quarter of play. Turk's two long runs thrilled the crowd of spectators who had gathered to see the fray.

Turk intercepted a Mount Jackson pass in the second period and snaked his way through a broken field for 57 yards for a touchdown. The third touchdown for the Mustang team came when Turk again intercepted a pass and ran 45 yards to the three-yard line. Wilks again scored with a center line plunge.

Davis, of Mount Jackson, covered himself with glory by intercepting a Mustang pass on the last play of the game and racing 55 yards for a touchdown. Davis' touchdown gave Mount Jackson the distinction of being the only team to score on the Mustangs this season. Chambers work on the Mustang line was outstanding, while for Mount Jackson Keely and Patterson looked good.

Party Is Planned For Hallowe'en

Members of the St. Margaret's society of the Seventh ward are now planning for a party on Saturday evening in celebration of Hallowe'en. This event will be held in the society hall on South Liberty street.

A varied and entertaining program is being worked out by the committee in charge for the party.

GOBLINS PARADE AT SHAW HOME

Witches and Goblins held a gala parade through the home of Miss Isabelle Shaw, Cherry street, as members of the Beatrice Davy Circle of the Mahoning Methodist church gathered for a Hallowe'en party.

Mrs. Ruth Mahoney served as co-hostess for the occasion. White, long-robed ghosts made up the reception committee and greeted the guests as they arrived at the home. Colorful and weird Hallowe'en decorations were attractively arranged about the Shaw home.

Games were enjoyed during the hours and a prize was awarded to Wilma McCann.

For the best costumes of the evening, awards went to Minnie Tindall, and to Mrs. Hope Joy Tindall. Lunch was served by the hostesses at a later hour. Plans were made to hold the next meeting of the circle on November 22, with Ina Cooper and Myrtle Conn as hostesses.

SEVENTH WARD PERSONALS

James Todd, Painesville, O. was a visitor in the ward on Monday.

Dean Kerr, Cherry street, is confined to his home because of illness.

Frank Kerr, Cherry street, is confined to his home because of illness.

Mrs. R. M. Burns, Madison avenue, is spending a few days visiting in Pittsburgh.

Ben Pelosi, Ashland avenue, is now able to be out after being confined to his home because of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bruno and daughter Louise, Madison avenue, and Miss Dorothy Bruno and Herbert Meyers returned to their homes Monday following a motor trip to Detroit, Mich.

FROM ME TO YOU

You can't beat this for service... cheap and prompt... A lost ad appeared in these columns last night stating that a Wrist Watch had been lost... the paper was hardly off the press when Miss Sally Ingham returned the watch to its rightful owner, Miss Nellie Ringer... you too can enjoy real results by using the classified ads not only on lost items but things you would like to buy.

One week from today will be general election day... it is time we weigh each side's questions... give each candidate an equal thought and then vote according to your own right way of thinking.

What prominent insurance salesman went south this week to say "I DO"?

It has been said that with proper distribution of income, we can buy all that we produce... meaning if you wish and it seems logical, to some here in New Castle, that it will take the cotton industry many weeks to replace the shirts recently lost in the stock market.

The other night while in a bull session the question came up concerning the Japanese... how we would all act if the United States was forced into a war and what would happen if the Japanese would refuse to listen to reason... one young man spoke up and said... "We can all go to Washington and sneer at the cherry trees."

If you want to see a real interesting play and presented by the best in amateurs... then plan on going to the Senior High School this coming Thursday night... Miss Clara Hartuff and her dramatic students have a real treat in store.

Here is a question... Why did our grandmothers brush their hair a hundred times before going to bed?... Is there a moral in that statement?

Prices Advance In Trading In Stocks During Morning

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Duplication yesterday's performance on a more modest scale, the stock market rallied briskly mid-way through the first hour today and converted losses of one to three points into gains of as much as five points in special issues.

Steels and motors, early weak spots, were the pacemakers in the rally. Thin markets continued the rule in many of the representative issues.

U. S. Steel, which was off 1 1/2 points to 57 1/2, snapped back to 60 1/2 before the recovery was slowed. Bethlehem changed a point decline into an advance of two as much, and Youngstown showed a plus sign of more than a point after dipping as much as the start.

Chrysler, in which trading was suspended for 48 minutes yesterday, was an active feature in the motors. From a low of 67 1/2, off 2 1/2 points, the stock spurted to 72, for a net gain of more than two points. It slid back about a point from the top later in the forenoon. General Motors changed a dip of almost a point into an equal gain.

Westinghouse Electric ran up five, after losing almost a point, before converted a 3 1/2 point loss into a gain of better than a point, and American Telephone a loss of 2 1/2 into a gain of one.

Other large gainers included J. I. Case, up four; Union Carbide, Loew's, Douglas, and U. S. Rubber, each well over a point; and American Can plus more than two.

Rails were somewhat backward, although early losses were in most cases converted into modest gains. Consolidated Edison was sluggish in the utilities.

Commodities were generally firm, wheat gaining more than a cent a bushel at Chicago and more than 20 cents at Winnipeg. Cotton moved up 25 cents a bale. Bonds, particularly convertible ones, were improved.

Amazing Hoax Is Aired In Court

Former Husband Of Pittsburgh Woman Cannot See Through "Twin Baby" Hoax

WANTS CUSTODY OF TWO CHILDREN

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 26.—An amazing admission that she had simulated the birth of twins to hoax her husband's three unmarried sisters, was made today by Mrs. Elva M. Bales Tortorice, according to her attorney, Harry Alan Sherman.

Fighting another of the series of court actions by which her divorced husband seeks the children, Mrs. Tortorice further declared the boys were not twins, that they were not her sons, that they were not her former husband's sons and that both she and her former husband have known this for some time.

She entered a maternity hospital, she explained, according to her attorney, and the two infants were brought to her from a Philadelphia orphanage and placed in bed with her.

With her husband's knowledge, she asserted, she presented the children as hers and the aunts were "tickled pink." The boys were given the names of Francis Herbert and James William.

"That's the only way to stop these court battles," Mrs. Tortorice declared through her attorney as she prepared to fight the habeas corpus action brought by her former husband, William Bales. It was the tenth legal battle fought over the two boys.

To Please Sisters

The hoax began in 1929, she asserted, in an effort to please her then husband's three unmarried sisters, Florence, Laura and Alice, with whom he resides. On March 13, 1934, Mrs. Tortorice was divorced from Bales who then began his court battles to regain custody of the boys never revealing the secret, according to the woman.

"My former husband is not hurting me; he is hurting the boys," Mrs. Tortorice declared today. "I have kept the secret because I did not want to hurt them. Now I see it is no longer any use."

She refused to name the real mothers. One, she said, is prominent in society but did not want the responsibility of bringing up a son.

"I would never have told," she explained, "except that my present husband and I feel that only by proving to the children do not belong to Mr. Bales and that he has no claim to them can we stop all these court battles."

Hoax Cost $500

Bales asserted he had turned over to his attorney, Dane Critchfield, the names of a physician and a nurse, who, he contends, will testify that Mrs. Tortorice is the mother of the boys.

"The repeated attempts of the father to win custody of the children show that he is certain that he is their father," said Critchfield. Mrs. Tortorice claims the hoax cost her $500 and that she now plans to adopt the boys legally.

Four Tunnels On Highway Route Have Been Drained

Work Will Proceed On Draining Of Remainder Of Tunnels On Dream Highway

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Oct. 26.—The Pennsylvania Turnpike commission disclosed today that four of the 16 tunnel openings along the proposed $50,000,000 "dream highway" route have been drained.

Millions of gallons of water have been drained from the East Negro, East Allegheny, East Kittittany and West Sideling openings, as the commission rushed plans to complete the other 12 entrances by December 1, it was announced.

The commission reported that draining of the west Blue Mountain tunnel is nearing completion while work will get under way in earnest soon at the west Laurel Hill, west Allegheny Mountain, east and west Ray's Hill, east Sideling Hill, east and west Tuscarora and west Kittittany mountains.

Workers have uncovered scores of relics, picks, shovels, carts, boilers and engines, left behind in the early '80s by construction gangs attempting to build a cross-state railroad backed by the Vanderbilt interests.

The highway, to be laid on the old South Penn railroad right of way, will connect Pittsburgh and Carlisle.

Montague Case Is Nearing End

Bandit Testifies That Montague Or Moore Was Not At Scene Of Holdup

JURY CONFUSED STORIES CONFLICT

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 26.—It was "zero hour" for Laverne Moore, the "John Montague" of Hollywood, when his first degree robbery trial entered its closing phase today.

The dimple-cheeked "Monty" faced a dilemma. Should he take the stand and tell his own story?

Stories Conflict

Two sharply conflicting stories were before the jury on the main issue of the trial, namely: "Was Laverne Moore (Montague) one of the four bandits who 'stuck up' the Kin Hana road house at Jay, N. Y., one night seven years ago?"

Roger Norton, one of the bandits—the one who acted as "lookout"—says he was.

William Carleton, another of the bandits, says he wasn't.

Bandit number three, John Sherry, is dead—killed in an automobile crash in the getaway following the robbery.

The fourth bandit: Who was he? That still is the big mystery, judged by the testimony given to date.

Testimony Refuted

Carleton, a shrewd looking, 40-year-old ex-convict, gunman, rum-runner and professional gambler, was the ace witness for Montague. He took the stand, flatly refuted the testimony of the state's ace witness, Norton. According to Carleton, the four bandits that night were himself, Sherry, Norton and a man named "Burns."

Was "Burns" the defendant Moore? Carleton said "no." Where is Burns? Carleton didn't know. Did "Burns" look like Moore? "I can't say that he did," replied Carleton.

Carleton admitted Laverne Moore was interested in rum running. He also admitted that several days before the holdup Moore and several pals took a look at Hana's road house which they were considering as a possible "drop" in liquor running activities. He insisted, however, that Moore wasn't present the night of the robbery.

Admits Participation
Bluntly and without hesitation, Carleton admitted he was in on the "stick-up" and that the bandits were masks and carried guns. He said he, Sherry and "Burns" entered the place and that Norton remained outside. They got about $700.

He didn't see anybody blackjack Matt Cobb, aged 67, the road house owner's father-in-law, but he heard the old man "hollering." He didn't hear anybody shout for "Verne" to take care of Cobb who put up a fight. Members of the Hana family had given such testimony.

How come that Laverne Moore's gladstone bag containing his clothes and personal effects and Moore's golf bag and sticks were found in his (Carleton's) car which was wrecked when state troopers pursued it after the robbery?

Took Golf Clubs

Well, Carleton said, sometime before the robbery he was making a trip to Rochester to do business on an ale deal and he stopped at Syracuse and picked up Moore. The latter had him drive to his home where he got his bag and golf sticks. The gladstone and the golf bag were put in the car—and left there. When Moore traveled he liked to take his golf sticks along because he played a great deal of golf.

In getting away after the robbery Norton and "Burns" left in one car, he and Sherry in the other, Carleton said.

Carleton was arrested at the scene of the crash of his car. His companion, Sherry, was killed. Norton, who got away in the other car, was subsequently captured. "Burns" disappeared and Carleton says he hasn't seen him since.

Went To Hollywood

It was shortly after August 5, 1930, the date of the robbery that Moore disappeared, to bob up later in Hollywood as a golf wonder and friend of film notables.

Carleton served five and one-half years in prison for the crime. Norton "did" two years.

Thus, the case of Laverne (John Montague) Moore has reached the point where it is one ex-bandit's word against the other's. This seemingly complicates the situation insofar as the all-male jury is concerned.

Whether to put "Monty" on the stand—or not—that was the question perplexing Montague's chief counsel, James M. Noonan, as the trial was resumed.

'Poison' Death Trial Lagging

Preserved Remains Of Albert Palmer Taken Into Courtroom In Jars

BANK OFFICIAL GIVES TESTIMONY

By EVELYN OBERMAN

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 26.—In grisly greeting to the crowd of spectators and "powder puff" jury a double row of glass jars stood on the exhibit table at the murder trial of Anna Marie Hahn today.

Paper sacks covered the jars from view, although not a person in the courtroom but knew they contained the preserved remains of Albert Palmer, third in the list of old men the state contends Mrs. Hahn poisoned for their money.

The prosecution today intended to add a fourth ghost to the group when testimony was introduced concerning the death of George Gsellman. Beside his specter and the glass bottles, Prosecutor Dudley Outcault said he would place the wheel chair of Albert Heis, described as the "only living victim" of the blond defendant.

Obtained $1,500

Slowed down by disputes over the introduction of almost every bit of evidence, the state yesterday was confined to the case of Palmer, labeled by Outcault as "Victim No. 3."

After a bank official had testified that Mrs. Hahn had obtained $1,500 from Palmer before his death, Defense Attorney Joseph H. Hoodin grilled Dr. Robert A. Kehoe on cross-examination. He finally gained an admission from the physician that Palmer might have died from chronic heart disease.

The doctor, however, stuck by his story that arsenic had been either the primary or contributory cause of death.

Mrs. Hahn is on trial for the death of Jacob Wagner, but the judge has ruled that others may be discussed to give the jury a full picture of the case.

Three Hundred Ask For Relief At Youngstown

Men Fired From Steel Plants During Strike Ask For Relief

(International News Service)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 26.—Three hundred and fifty unemployed steel mill strikers, acting through the CIO steel workers organizing committee, today applied to county authorities for relief.

SWOC officials presented the request to County Relief Director I. L. Pauer, of Mahoning county, contending the 350 were fired from their jobs in Republic Steel Company and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company mills as a result of strike activities.

E. H. Dunn, CIO relief director, said the union had found it necessary to discontinue the relief it had been furnishing the strikers. The SWOC committee was informed that unemployed steel workers would receive the same treatment as other relief applicants.

The request came on the heels of a statement by the relief director that unless the proposed relief levy here passed at the November election, all medical relief would have to be discontinued and food relief reduced by half.

Confession By Youth Checked

Homestead, Pa., Young Man Insists That He Killed Louise Hornbeck

(International News Service)

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 26.—Filing of formal charges against Alexander Maneff, 23, West Homestead, Pa., was delayed today while Lorain county authorities further checked his alleged confession that he attacked Louise Hornbeck, 19, near her Grafton home a week ago.

Prosecutor Howard Butler announced the youth confessed the attack and also admitted he struck Miss Hornbeck with a club but denied knowing he had killed her. Maneff is being held on an open charge.

The confession, Prosecutor Butler said, checks closely with evidence found at the scene of the attack, but a few details must be cleared up before charges are filed. Stains found on Maneff's sweater are being tested to ascertain whether they were from blood.

If the stains prove to be Miss Hornbeck's type of blood, the state case would be strengthened materially, Butler said.

Maneff, according to Butler, has delusions of grandeur, and although normal and of average intelligence in other ways, may be somewhat unbalanced in sex matters.

Strike Called At Pittsburgh

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 26.—A strike was called today against the Rosenbaum company's store where 500 persons are employed by the United Department Stores Employees Union, a CIO affiliate. While pickets paraded in front of the building, company officials declared business was going on as usual. The company denied the union's claims that it had backtracked after agreeing to a contract.

Dr. Veach Heard Monday Evening

Speaks On Sino-Japanese Situation At Nurses Home At Jameson Hospital

Dr. Robert Willis Veach, a noted traveler and lecturer, delivered a comprehensive lecture on the "Sino-Japanese Situation" Monday evening in the nurses' home of the Jameson Memorial hospital.

Dr. Veach, in a most interesting manner, told about the conditions and native customs of China and Japan. His understanding of the historical and economic background of the present conflict was enlightening. Dr. Veach spoke with authority, having spent many years in the Orient. He made a thorough study of the philosophy and ethics of both nations.

While he was on a mission in China, for the Guggenheim Foundation, Dr. Veach studied closely the social and economic problems. At the present time, he is engaged in writing a book about China. Dr. Veach's appearance here was sponsored by the Quota club. After a few words of welcome by the president of the club, Miss Martha Bigley, Dr. Veach was introduced by his daughter, Dr. Elizabeth Veach, of New Wilmington, with whom he is visiting.

Following the educational lecture, a delightful social hour followed when tea was served, with Dr. Elizabeth Veach and Miss Bigley, pouring. Mrs. Julia Hrdina, superintendent of nurses, Dr. Elizabeth Veach and Miss Bigley were corsages of Johanna Hill rose buds and baby mums presented by the Quota club. They, together with other Quotarians, were gracious hostesses.

Autumn colors were accented in decorations. Autumn leaves, bitter sweet and chrysanthemum were repeated in tall papers that graced the tea table and mantel.

On next Monday evening, November 1, at 216 North Jefferson street, the Quota club members will assemble for their regular dinner meeting. They will enjoy a travel talk by Mrs. Carrie J. Roberts.

This is the season when polite callers sit in heavy coats and say: "How do you stand it so hot in here?"
